The Styx Tapestry. Woven by the Pig Maidens of Styx, Northumbria.

It shows the events that led to the invasion and battle and the defeat of King Harry the Cleaver and his army of Ner-do-Wells, at the trotters of King Swillyham the conqueror and his brave army of pigs.

One sees how the evil Harry's (Distant ancestor of Jimmy the Cleaver) ill-treatment of pigkind, incurred the wrath of the good King Swillyham. (A distant ancestor of our own Uncle Pigg). One sees how Swillyham plans and commences the invasion. One sees the evil smirks of the butchers unchanged over the centuries as they prepare for battle.

Then the battle itself, graphically depicted by the weavers of Styeux. See the pig army overwhelm the baddies. See the famous picture of King Harry badly injured, fleeing the country. Finally, see the victorious Swillyman crowned King of Brittain.

Surely one of the greatest historical masterpieces of all time now brought to you by the ever-generous Uncle Pigg at no great expense. Turn the page and feast your eyes.
